

Mankind Weekends

ISC Cleveland Work-Life Family Advocacy Program has authorization to fund CG members for TAD travel and conference fees on their government travel orders to attend a "ManKind Project" weekend between now and the end of this fiscal year.

The "ManKind Project" weekend is an intense personal growth/camping experience, usually held at a Boy Scout Camp facility. They provide guided activities with highly trained facilitators that will help you through a process that challenges men to look at all aspects of their life. They help you evaluate your life choices and develop a personal life mission, so you will be able to live a more fulfilled life. Please visit their web site:

Comments from previous participants;

"I recommend it to all who need the chance to reflect, look at where they are going or even just rethink things. Well worth it.!"

"I thought that the weekend was great and well worth it. I learned about myself and other men tremendously. I can definitely tell a difference in my life!"

"It helps you understand how to deal with problems, and to trust other men. ... After I was home a few days, my wife made the comment that she had noticed a change in me. I felt more relaxed about things."
